SNO-FOO 1991—Terry Prowse

We have all known Terry to be enthusiastic and energetic with respect to his work with the Eastern Snow Conference. He has worked very diligently and continuously over the years on research in our area. Many times he has chaired panels and is quick to provide input wherever he feels it is appropriate.

However, at this year's conference, Terry, as a session chairman, went beyond good taste in providing the audience with an "applause" sign. Eloquently hand painted, this wooden sign was transported from Saskatoon all the way to Guelph secretly in an obscure suitcase. Furthermore, he never once used the sign to instigate applause. As ridiculous as it may seem, he still proceeded with his session to keep the sign available and close at hand.

This, in itself, was not worthy of the Sno-Foo award, but when Terry hinted to his session speakers that they should, in fact, provide him with liquid libation, well that provoked the ire of the Sno-Foo Committee. The harassment of speakers and intimidation of the audience cannot go unnoticed, nor overlooked or justly rewarded.
